

Alness focus on energy efficiency

RESIDENTS living in a Alness are being invited to an energy efficiency open day this coming Monday to find out how they can reduce the cost of their energy bills.

And if saving money on bills isn't enough to encourage people to attend, then organisers hope the prospect of winning an energy efficient fridge/freezer might!

The open event will launch the West Alness SAVE (Save And Value Energy) Project, a year-long community led project sponsored by Scottish Hydro Electric, which aims to help the hundreds of households in the area reduce their energy bills and learn how they can use their electricity smarter.

The open day is being held on Monday from 2.30pm to 8.30pm in the Westend Community Centre, Firhill, Alness. There will be various stalls, free low energy light bulbs from the Highland Energy Efficiency Advice Centre, free teas and coffees all day and a children's competition.

The West Alness SAVE Project will also be holding a free prize draw for an energy efficient fridge freezer which can only be entered at the event. The Co-op has donated £40 of vouchers to go along with the prize.

RJ 9/11/07